Affirmed. ON MOTION FOR REHEARING Motion denied. BURMAN, Justice (dissenting). I respectfully dissent. While I think the judgment of the trial court was correct and should be affirmed, I think the *471 majority opinion in overruling the motion for rehearing is a gross misconception of the law relating to the question of special and general demurrers. In that respect I deem it proper to state a very few of the many authorities cited in my original dissent, and some additional ones not cited therein. In the first place, there is no merit to the contention of the majority opinion that the appeal was waived because there was no order entered in the trial court overruling the demurrers. While the reasons for an appeal are stated in the record at the time the appeal is taken, when the appeal is taken it is the notice of appeal which is controlling, and not the reasons therefor which are stated in the record. Thus, if the order of the trial court sustaining the general demurrers was correct, the appellant was entitled to have the cause decided on that question, and the order overruling the demurrers was a nullity. In the case at bar, the order which sustained the general demurrers did not state that the demurrers were not well taken, but merely sustained them. In the case of Dunnington v. Duncan's Heirs, 35 Ala. 564, the Court said: "The objection to the form of the order, that it did not state that the demurrer was not well taken, is insufficient to waive the matter. The record proper contains the judgment and the order 82157476af
